

Eric Trump Reveals More Details From the FBI Mar-a-Lago Raid

Former President Donald Trump's son Eric Trump revealed that FBI agents wouldn't hand over the search warrant during their Aug. 8 raid on Mar-a-Lago and removed an attorney from the property.

"There's 30 agents there," he told the Daily Mail on Aug. 10 of the FBI raid. 'They told our lawyer ... you have to leave the property right now. Turn off all security cameras.

"They would not give her the search warrant. So they showed it to her from about 10 feet away. They would not give her a copy of the search warrant."

Attorney Christina Bobb was confused as to why the FBI couldn't present the search warrant, according to Eric Trump.

"It's all a coordinated attack with the FBI," he said. "Do you think that the FBI director is going to raid the former president's house, especially a house as you know, kind of world-renowned as Mar-a-Lago ... without getting the approval of President [Biden]?"

The younger Trump said security cameras weren't turned off. FBI agents accessed areas of the property where they "shouldn't have been," he claimed.

The former president confirmed the FBI raid on his property on the evening of Aug. 8. Both the FBI and Department of Justice haven't issued public comments about the matter; The Epoch Times has contacted both agencies for comment.

Unconfirmed reports and anonymous sources say the raid pertained to a Department of Justice probe into whether Donald Trump held onto government documents after he left the White House last year.

All presidential correspondence and documentation have to be handed over to the National Archives when a president leaves office, according to a 1978 law.

“[The National Archives and Records Administration (NARA)] had ongoing communications with the representatives of former President Trump throughout 2021, which resulted in the transfer of 15 boxes to NARA in January 2022,” David Ferriero, who served as NARA director from November 2009 until April 2022, wrote to House Oversight Committee Chair Carolyn Maloney (D-N.Y.) in February.

Ferriero said NARA requested that Trump representatives “continue to search for any additional Presidential records that have not been transferred to NARA, as required by the Presidential Records Act.”

But Bobb told Real America’s Voice that the raid over the documents is a “completely unnecessary power flex” and a “weird flex.”

“It’s quite honestly sad to see what they have done to our country,” she said.

Top Republicans demanded an investigation into the raid and argued that it was politically motivated to wound the Republican Party ahead of the 2022 midterms.

“The Department of Justice has reached an intolerable state of weaponized politicization,” House Minority Leader Kevin McCarthy (R-Calif.) said in an Aug. 10 statement. “When Republicans take back the House, we will conduct immediate oversight of their department, follow the facts, and leave no stone unturned.”
